Batteries – Alkaline (non-rechargeable) (AAA, AA, C, D, 9-volt)

Most alkaline, non-rechargeable batteries no longer contain significant quantities of hazardous chemicals and may be thrown in the garbage.

However please check to see if local recycling facilities exist that will accept them.

See the Homeowners Guide to Battery Management.

As of the date of this update, ECUA is accepting these batteries at their HHW Day.

Paint (Latex)

While oil-based paint is a household hazardous waste, latex paint is not, and can be dried and disposed in the trash.

Do not bring it to Household Hazardous Waste Days.

Reuse

Store your paint tightly for future use and touch ups, or check with neighbors, schools, camps, youth groups, Scout groups and theatre companies to see if they can reuse your paint

Disposal

1. Place sand, kitty litter or shredded newspaper into wet paint.
2. Once paint is absorbed and dry, place lid back on paint can.
3. Place paint can in trash for regular collection.

Back to Top

Paper Products (Expanded)

While not exactly recycled, the following uses can extend the usable life of non-flat paper products.

There are numerous other ideas found on the Internet for these materials.

These materials can be usually be added to your paper bin as well.

Cup Caddies (i.e. fast food restaurant to-go cup holders)

Return these caddies back to the point of origin. At some places, there could be a free drink in it for you.

Egg Cartons

Great for craft activities, paint reservoirs & small item storage.
Try to donate to schools, camps, etc.

Toilet Paper and Paper Towel Rolls

Great for craft activities.
Try to donate to schools, camps, etc.
